Reactionary Communists.

Prohibition has been proclaimed in the republic of Yakutia, one of the satrapies of Moscow, because the thirsty inhabitants thereof have been spending so many wares and reindeer for vodka that they could not pay their taxes. The Soviet is not as amiable as some of the "capitalist" governments in condemning the vodka habits. If it were, it would take over the vodka business itself and charge high enough prices that it could get along without taxes. For a communistic regime the powers that be in Yakutia are decidedly slow.

"Money in Hens".

A neat poultry show which is to open in Edmonton at the end of the month it is in order to note a remark made by Hon. J. H. Martin, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, at Redwood, Mr. Martin, who is one of the foremost poultrymen in Canada, speaking on the importance of quality, said: "I shipped ten chicks, eight hens and two roosters, to the Argentine, and realized $1,500 on the transaction." That ought to help stir up interest in the poultry business, and in a show the object of which is to raise the standards in Alberta. There is "money in hens" if they are the right kind.

The Indian's Status.

The courts of the United States are to decide whether an Inghook Indian is a "foreigner" when he lives in Canada, or whether members of that race should be considered free to move about in the territory over which their fathers ranged, without regard to the international boundary and the immigration laws. If this concession were granted to the Inghook it could not well be denied to other tribes whose ancestors occupied territory on either side of the line. The Sioux and the Blackfoot are western tribes who would seem to be entitled to disregard such things as passports and "quotas" if the Inghook is exempt from such handicaps.

Not Trusting Moscow.

It is notable that while the British have been singled out for attack in China, despatches state that American women and children are being got out of the interior as rapidly as boats can be found to carry them. The inference is that Americans, and probably other foreigners as well, who are on the ground, are under no delusion as to the significance of the movement, for the time they may be granted immunity, but only because the Reds would rather deal with the foreign elements one at a time. The British, out of the turn of the wheel, are to get out of the Japanese, probably excepted—if any are foolish enough to risk their lives by staying until that time. The Reds want no foreigners in China but themselves, for obvious reasons. The Japanese they will likely leave alone for prudential reasons.

A General Overhaul?

It is rumored from Ottawa that the board of grain commissioners is likely to be reorganized out of existence; and replaced by a single commissioner, who is to be a "practical man" and one having "more sympathy with the producers".

Even so radical a procedure would hardly excite surprise. It has become apparent, and for some time past, that all is not well in the grain trade, and that a situation has arisen which requires treatment, prompt, vigorous and comprehensive. Appearance deceives unless the time has come when there should be a general overhaul of the administrative machinery under which that trade is carried on.

The chorus of protest which goes up from the western provinces every fall about the grading of wheat indicates a condition of widespread and continuing dissatisfaction with the present system, or the way in which that system is operated. Nobody will suppose that a grading system could ever be established under which there would be no complaints from individual farmers here and there who thought that they were not getting the grade their grain deserved. But the outcry against the present method of grading is altogether too general and too regular in its recurrence to be dismissed as the occasional expression of disappointment and discontent. Whether the farmers are right or wrong, the matter is one requiring attention. If they are right they are entitled to a remedy. If they are wrong it is up to somebody to "show" them.

It is relevant also to recall that the Turgon commission recommended a radical change in the management of Government terminal elevators. This recommendation is that the Government take charge of all elevators which have been built with Government money, and put these under the control of a board of which the Government would be a member. The Government would be answerable to the grain commission. The cashiering of the Vancouver harbor board opens the way for adoption of the plan in respect to the elevators there—where a change of some sort is very evidently in order.

A Fool And His Auto

By EDGAR A. GILSON

I've owned a car for almost fifteen years. I know just how to drive it. I understand just how to shift the gears. And what I do when going fast or slow. And all that time I have not yet got to something I have never understood.

In times of trouble up my hands I throw I don't know what is underneath the hood.

I'm just the chap who feeds the gas and steers. I call myself a motorist although the service station hirelings plainly sneer at the omniscient ignorance of the ordinary driver.

It seems that denser every year I grow. I have a lot of trouble, but what the good. The car I own I've never crawled below I don't know what is underneath the hood.

Strange sounds mean nothing to my foolish ears. I know the noise of fire when they blow. But I must wait until a man appears. And then but little help can I have.

I pull many a time along a busy row Waiting for some mechanic I have sought. What can make their own repairs, but oh, I don't know what is underneath the hood.

I envy him, who starts his knowledge glow. Like him, I'd start the motor if I could. But when I'm stuck, for help I radio. I don't know what is underneath the hood.

Prominence

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Prominence has its danger. Many of our men are too anxious to be famous. They would like to be gazed at and crowded after like "Mugs" and "Mugs" like the late Mr. Valentine. Many of us know the fact that our day must be spent in some lowly valley where we are practically unknown.

We might get some comfort from what "Mugs" said the other day when he remarked that he had to go on his knees as much in life as a patient man. Nobody is safe. You would think that the American people would have undying and universal respect for such a man as Admiral Dewey, and yet when he came home and married a wife of ordinary relative faith and gave her his house, public opinion was in a state of such a state of mind that he had to go on his knees.

You speedily discover that when you're resident or senator or governor or even "Mugs" think, whatever you do to the public business.

Little else or pecuniary that would pass unnoticed in an ordinary man are played up when they are yours. In the case of the man who is to be successful about your work and about your dress. About where you spit and where you sneeze. The eyes of humanity are all upon you, and living so, with everybody watching you, is something like a good deal of fun.

There is a childish element in humanity which cannot resist throwing stones at anything that is up high on the hill.

Publicity is a great thing and doubtless makes some sense out of a great deal of sense. It is a great thing, and on the whole, a man is safer when he doesn't feel with it.

By EDGAR A. GILSON

I've owned a car for almost fifteen years. I know just how to drive it. I understand just how to shift the gears. And what I do when going fast or slow. And all that time I have not yet got to something I have never understood.

In times of trouble up my hands I throw I don't know what is underneath the hood.

I'm just the chap who feeds the gas and steers. I call myself a motorist although the service station hirelings plainly sneer at the omniscient ignorance of the ordinary driver.

It seems that denser every year I grow. I have a lot of trouble, but what the good. The car I own I've never crawled below I don't know what is underneath the hood.

Strange sounds mean nothing to my foolish ears. I know the noise of fire when they blow. But I must wait until a man appears. And then but little help can I have.

I pull many a time along a busy row Waiting for some mechanic I have sought. What can make their own repairs, but oh, I don't know what is underneath the hood.

I envy him, who starts his knowledge glow. Like him, I'd start the motor if I could. But when I'm stuck, for help I radio. I don't know what is underneath the hood.

Prominence

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Prominence has its danger. Many of our men are too anxious to be famous. They would like to be gazed at and crowded after like "Mugs" and "Mugs" like the late Mr. Valentine. Many of us know the fact that our day must be spent in some lowly valley where we are practically unknown.

We might get some comfort from what "Mugs" said the other day when he remarked that he had to go on his knees as much in life as a patient man. Nobody is safe. You would think that the American people would have undying and universal respect for such a man as Admiral Dewey, and yet when he came home and married a wife of ordinary relative faith and gave her his house, public opinion was in a state of such a state of mind that he had to go on his knees.

You speedily discover that when you're resident or senator or governor or even "Mugs" think, whatever you do to the public business.

Little else or pecuniary that would pass unnoticed in an ordinary man are played up when they are yours. In the case of the man who is to be successful about your work and about your dress. About where you spit and where you sneeze. The eyes of humanity are all upon you, and living so, with everybody watching you, is something like a good deal of fun.

There is a childish element in humanity which cannot resist throwing stones at anything that is up high on the hill.

Publicity is a great thing and doubtless makes some sense out of a great deal of sense. It is a great thing, and on the whole, a man is safer when he doesn't feel with it.

Do You Remember?

Forty Years Ago

From the Edmonton Bulletin, Saturday, January 12, 1927.

The rebellion claims commission have been heard from again. Last spring they docked J. McDonald on the price of a horse supplied by him to the military department at $7. He wrote to the commission to get the price of the horse reduced to $5.00.

A Christmas tree entertainment was held at the Methodist church at Battle river on Christmas day, S. H. Jones, Indian agent, acting as chairman.

One of the men of the south side of one of his hind legs was killed in the battle at the site of the battle. The leg was badly injured and he was taken to the hospital. He had lost his leg, and so far no serious effects have developed.

Chaplin's Millions Now Guarded By Receivers Named By Court

1926 in Review for One Tennessee Family

PENDING HIS WIFE'S CLAIM FOR DIVORCE

Film Comedian Declares He Will Fight All Charges

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 12.—Receivers mounted guard today over the California millions of Charles Chaplin to protect the interests of his estranged wife, Lita Grey Chaplin, whose suit for divorce takes a portion of the film comedian's fortune of $15,000,000.

The receivers, W. L. Oliver, attorney, and Herman Spittler, real estate operator, were appointed by a superior court order yesterday as a result of a surprise move on the part of Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys who filed an application for an ex-parte receivership.

The court was advised that Chaplin had taken over all of the assets of the comedian and his wife in California pending the outcome of the divorce suit. Oliver requests was an attorney for Mrs. Lita Grey Chaplin, who in the conspiracy case which has been dropped, Mrs. Chaplin contends that $15,000,000 of the income in conspiracy property was taken from her.

The first step to take possession of the comedian's millions was taken when notice of receivership was served on the offices of the Chaplin studios in Hollywood.

The receivers indicated they next would take possession of Chaplin's 40-room mansion in Beverly Hills, California, for Mrs. Chaplin, said they had taken their right to the comedian's home and maintain his telephone there in the district.

When Mrs. Chaplin left the area, she was told to leave her car and her trunk with her to live with her and her trunk.

The affidavit which placed the receivership on Chaplin's millions was sworn to by Edward T. Oliver, an uncle of Mrs. Chaplin, and her sister.

The court was advised that Chaplin had left the jurisdiction of the California courts and had gone to New York with the intention of completing an unfinished picture.

Chaplin's millions were seized with property because of the inability to find him any of the receivers, who was required to furnish $200,000 bond.

Mrs. Chaplin's attorney, Mr. Oliver, declared the new receiver would not only take possession of Mrs. Chaplin's millions but would oppose her effort to "nullify custody" of her two children.

Mrs. Chaplin's allegation that Chaplin had committed adultery with certain motion picture actresses here in Hollywood was denied with indignation. Her attorney, Oliver, said that Mrs. Chaplin's suit for divorce was a "hoax" and that she was a "mad woman."
